We are pleased to announce that the 9th EEHNC will be hosted by Utrecht University in the Netherlands on February 15-17, 2019. The 9th EEHNC congress theme is “Small Things” and it consists of a three-day programme that will take place over the weekend.

On Friday, February 15, 2019, the 9th EEHNC organisation will host an extensive workshop programme at the Department of Equine Health of the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine. Delegates can sign up for a Faculty tour focused on Equine research and education facilities. The organisation will also host a mini-symposium “Small Things, the big picture” which provides delegates with a comparative view of equine digestive physiology from a multidisciplinary perspective. Consecutively, in relation to the FEI ‘Clean Sport Initiative’, the mini-symposium “Nutritional causes of positive doping testing” will be organised. There will also be clinical workshops for veterinarians dedicated to liver and lung diagnostics throughout the afternoon. For nutritionists and equine nutrition researchers, the workshop “Equine digestibility” trials will be of specific interest. The workshops and mini-symposia will have an applied and hands-on approach.

The plenary sessions on Saturday and Sunday will consist of three main topics: “Relationships between the microbiota, gastrointestinal tract health and digestive aids for horses” (Saturday), “Epigenetics & Nutrition: Focus on developmental programming in equine species in relation to nutrition” (Sunday morning) & “Feed hygiene, Feeding management practices & Equine Health: Veterinary perspectives and solutions (Sunday afternoon).

If you want to stay up to date about the latest insights regarding equine health and nutrition, make sure not to miss this gathering of the international community of equine nutritionists, veterinarians and researchers.

Renowned experts in their field have confirmed their presence as speakers. We will be joined by Bruce McGorum, Pascale Chavatte-Palmer, Meriel Moore-Colyer, Véronique Julliand, Cornélie Westermann and many more.
